The Cohen Center for Modern Jewish Studies (CMJS), founded in 1980, is dedicated to providing independent, high-quality research on issues related to contemporary Jewish life.

The Cohen Center is also the home of the Steinhardt Social Research Institute (SSRI). Established in 2005, SSRI uses innovative research methods to collect and analyze sociodemographic data on the Jewish community.

METHODOLOGY

Overview

CMJS/SSRI has developed innovative methods to estimate the size and characteristics of the Greater MetroWest New Jersey Jewish community. As survey techniques have become more refined, the barriers to reaching respondents have become increasingly difficult to overcome. Researchers typically experience limitations in reaching respondents due to the proliferation of survey research, the prevalence of cell phones, and caller ID/blocking. Low-incidence populations are particularly hard to reach using the traditional method of random digit dialing (RDD) because the likelihood of reaching someone in the target population depends upon the size of that group relative to the population as a whole. To address these barriers, CMJS has utilized a research design that incorporates two innovations:

- Data from an extended sample of email-only respondents
- Use of organizational data to correct for sampling bias

The research design for the Greater MetroWest New Jersey Jewish Community Study utilizes random sampling from an identified frame, or list, of the known population. Local Jewish organizations provided their own lists. These lists were combined with a purchased list of likely Jewish households within the geographic area and were then deduplicated. The combined list constituted the sampling frame from which a primary random sample of households was drawn. Because this primary sample was a random selection from the overall frame, it is assumed to be representative of the entire frame. For that reason, data collected from the random sample were used to estimate overall population characteristics.

To supplement the primary random sample, a second sample was drawn from a frame consisting of the remaining households who had an email address. Information from these households increased the amount of data available from populations of interest and allowed for more detailed analysis of the characteristics of the community.

Sampling Frame

The 2020 Greater MetroWest New Jersey Jewish Community Study implemented a dual-mode Internet and telephone survey to reach year-round and seasonal residents of the Greater MetroWest New Jersey area. In the absence of an area probability or RDD frame, we built a sampling frame from the combined mailing lists of Jewish organizations in Greater MetroWest New Jersey. The numbers and types of organizations included in the lists are shown in Table A1.

Stratum 1 was built from lists collected in spring 2020 for purposes of the “Building Resilient Jewish Communities” study of the impact of COVID-19. Any respondents to that survey who agreed to be recontacted for future research were included in Stratum 1 of the demographic study.

Table A1. Composition of strata

5	Family	9 organization lists
6	Synagogues	29 organization lists

8	Jewish Ethnic names	Purchased list from MelissaData

In order to find any Jewish-connected households not already known to the organized Jewish community, a list of possible Jewish households based on ethnic Jewish names was purchased from a commercial data broker, MelissaData, and was added to the sample. This list identifies households based on their geography, and then further restrict households to those with Jewish last names and first names. The list, referred to as the “ethnic names list,” consisted of 23,708 households that were identified as likely to include someone who was Hebrew-speaking or Jewish by ethnicity, ethnic group, or religion, and did not appear on an organization’s list; these households represented the “unaffiliated” Jewish community. Households that appeared solely on the ethnic names list, and not on any organization’s list, were assigned to a separate grouping, called “stratum,” based on this indicator. MelissaData flagged households on this list that had been at their address for one year or less, which were assigned to stratum 2.

The organizational and purchased lists were combined, cleaned, and deduplicated to ensure that no unique household appeared on the list more than once. Households that appeared on multiple lists were placed in the lowest-number strata for which they were eligible; for example, a household appearing on a “young adult” list (stratum 4), a synagogue list (stratum 6), and the Ethnic Names list (stratum 8) would be assigned to stratum 4.

Households without any mailing address in strata 1-6 were removed from the sampling frame because they could not be fully identified. Households in stratum 7 without a ZIP Code were stratified into separate sub-strata and were used only in the supplementary sample. The combined list-based sampling frame consisted of 87,697 households.

Sample Design

The sampling frame was divided into 8 strata based on expected characteristics of the household inferred from the household’s appearance on organizational lists and ZIP code. Strata 7 and 8 were subdivided based on the anticipated density of Jewish households of the ZIP code, and households in stratum 7 without addresses were included in an email-only stratum, yielding 11 strata in total. The composition of the 11 strata is shown in Table A2.

Once the strata assignments were made, a primary sample of 17,769 total potential respondents was randomly selected from across each of the strata (Table A2). The sampling rate of each was designed to account for the expected probability of response to the survey and expected eligibility. Jewish households in the synagogue list, for example, were expected to be most willing to respond to the survey and highly likely to be Jewish. The goal of the sampling design was to maximize representativeness of the achieved sample.

Concurrent to the primary sample, a backup sample of 3,198 primary-eligible households was drawn from the remainder of the sampling frame, to be used as needed to ensure the targeted number of completed sample surveys were completed. In the event that the households in the backup sample were not needed for the primary sample to reach the targeted number of completed surveys, they would be treated as part of the supplementary sample.

Following selection of the primary and backup samples, an email-only supplement was identified. This sample frame of 24,676 households for the email supplement included all households in the email sub-strata that were not selected into the primary sample. In all, 24,676 of those households were selected into the email-only supplement.

The combination of the primary sample, backup sample, and the email-only supplement is referred to as the “full sample.”

Survey Instrument and Data Collection

The survey instrument was designed in collaboration with the advisory committee convened by the Jewish Federation of Greater MetroWest New Jersey. The questions were crafted to minimize potential bias and any burden on respondents. Where possible, questions, language, and definitions were adopted from previously published Jewish community survey questionnaires, allowing for greater confidence in their reliability.

The questionnaire was divided into two parts, a screener and the survey itself. The screener section was asked of all respondents to determine eligibility. Any household in the sample was considered eligible if it contained at least one adult ages 18 or older who lived in Greater MetroWest New Jersey for at least part of the year and considered him- or herself to be Jewish.

Qualifying households proceeded to the main survey, which included sections on basic sociodemographic information, engagement in Jewish life, and perceptions of various aspects of Jewish communal life in Greater MetroWest New Jersey. In order to minimize the burden on respondents, a series of complex skip patterns (“branching”) were created to ensure that respondents were only asked questions that pertained to their specific life situation or experience. The online survey took between 20-30 minutes to complete. Respondents completing the survey over the telephone usually completed it in 25-40 minutes. However, the amount of time required to complete the survey varied depending on household composition and the degree of detail respondents were willing to offer for open-ended questions.

The survey and CATI interface were programmed by the University of New Hampshire Survey Center. Two modes of data collection were utilized: online and telephone. The online and telephone instruments were identical – when a survey was completed over the phone, the telephone interviewer would fill out the online version.

The survey instrument and codebook appear in the appendix.

Field Procedures

Prenotification letters were mailed to the primary sample of 17,769 households on October 1, 2020. These letters explained the purpose of the survey and provided each household with a unique link to complete the survey independently online. Households for which one or more email addresses were available also received these letters electronically on September 30, 2020. A survey invitation was sent to one email address for each household. If email messages “bounced” or were undeliverable, another email address from the same household was substituted if available.

After one week, households that had not completed the survey were contacted by telephone. The primary goal of telephone contact was to administer the survey over the phone if the respondent was unable or unwilling to complete the survey online, or if the respondent simply preferred to complete the survey over the phone. If the respondent was unwilling to complete the survey over the phone at the time of the call, he or she was asked for a better time to be called again or for an email address to re-send the link to the survey online. Systematic respondent selection did not take place. The first adult reached in the household was interviewed. Calling began on October 13, 2020, starting with the households for which phone numbers were available but email addresses were not. Calling concluded on December 11, 2020. Nine email reminders were sent for all non-completed surveys during the field period.

Data collection was conducted and supervised by UNH, who was responsible for selecting and training callers, supervising and monitoring calling, tracking dispositions, and sending email reminders. Interviewers and supervisors were trained in survey procedures for this specific project, including the study’s sponsor, target population, and eligibility criteria; the survey instrument; pronunciation of Hebrew and Yiddish words; and entering open-ended responses.

In addition to survey-specific training, interviewers also receive general training in telephone procedures and interviewing techniques. Only interviewers who had undergone this basic training worked on the project. Interviewers were provided with paper sheets with frequently asked questions and pronunciation guides, names of Jewish organizations and congregations, and background information on selected concepts.

Callers made up to 10 attempts (across all phone numbers) to reach all households in the primary sample who did not complete the survey online in response to email requests or who did not have email addresses. Callers offered to conduct survey interviews over the telephone or, if requested, to send the household members their unique link to complete the survey online at their convenience.

Households were contacted repeatedly at different days and times to determine whether available contact information was correct. Households whose available contact information was confirmed to be outdated, who had no contact information, and those for whom the status was uncertain were searched in online public records databases to find updated information.

The supplementary sample was conducted as an email-only survey that was not accompanied by prenotification letters or phone calls. The survey instrument for the email sample was identical to the one used for the primary sample. Email invitations were sent to the 27,874 households in the backup and supplementary samples on September 30, 2020, with nine reminders on for non-completed surveys during the field period.

At the end of data collection, the cases in the backup sample were integrated into the supplementary sample.

Data collection ended on December 18, 2020. A cleaned dataset was prepared by UNH Survey Center.

Data Outcomes

In the overall primary sample, 2,545 households completed the screener, with 2,013 screening in and 532 screening out (Table A3). The overall response rate was 33% for the primary sample (AAPOR RR4). For the combined list-based sample (primary plus supplement), 4,564 households completed the screener, and of those, 3,754 were screened into the full survey (Table A4). The response rate for the combined primary and supplement was 20% (AAPOR RR4).

There were 198 respondents who initially screened into the survey but after inspection of responses were determined to include no Jewish adults or that the adults were Messianic Jews and therefore ineligible for the survey, or lived outside of the catchment area.¹ An additional 448 respondents screened into the survey but did not complete the household roster, and so were not included in analyses. The final sample consisted of 3,295 households (Table A5).

Population Estimates from AJPP

Because the list-based survey cannot produce a reliable population estimate, we use other methods to estimate population size and characteristics. We then use these estimates as targets for poststratification of the sample.

Since 2005, the American Jewish Population Project (AJPP) at the Steinhardt Social Research Institute (SSRI) has identified and collected hundreds of nationally representative surveys of the US population to produce estimates of the Jewish population in the continental United States, its states, metropolitan areas, and counties (or groups of counties). These estimates provide an independent, external reference for the basic demographic profile of the Jewish population. This population profile serves as a point of reference for the community as a whole and for those who conduct targeted surveys of the population and have no frame of reference for evaluating the representativeness of their survey sample. Details of the methods are reported elsewhere.²

The data synthesis method demonstrates how an auxiliary data source can be constructed to provide independent, census-like estimates of the size and characteristics of the adult Jewish by religion (JBR) population in the U.S. at the county level.³ These estimates of the adult JBR population may then be used to generate new post-stratification weights. These new post-stratification weights are then applied to the targeted study of the Jewish population.

Summary of Data

The full sample of surveys in the AJPP dataset consists of data from surveys of nationally representative random samples of the adult population in the U.S. conducted between 1997 and 2020. The dataset includes surveys identified in major data repositories, such as the Inter-university Consortium for Political and Social Research (ICPSR) and the American Religion Data Archive (ARDA), as well as in poll archives at the Roper Center, Gallup, and Pew Research Center. Surveys include the American National Election Studies, Pew Political and social surveys, Gallup Daily Tracking poll, the Cooperative Congressional Election Study (CCES) and other surveys. The dataset includes more than 1,200 independent samples and a total combined sample size of more than 2.9 million respondents, of whom over 69,000 identify as Jewish by religion. Where a single survey may have included multiple sampling methods or frames (e.g., landline versus cellphone), each is treated as a separate independent sample, with unique identifiers to indicate series membership.⁴ For surveys that included oversamples, only the representative portion of the samples were included in the analyses unless the oversamples were of groups estimated directly in the population models – for example, age or race – in which case the oversample contributed only to estimation of that particular group.

All of the surveys in the sample provide data on those who identify as Jewish by religion (JBR), which is the largest proportion of the Jewish population and therefore serves as the baseline group for generating population estimates. A smaller number of surveys include assessment of religious upbringing or parents' religious/ethnic identification, or non-religious Jewish identification (for instance, “Do you consider yourself Jewish?”) in addition to current religious affiliation.⁵

The present report is based on a custom analysis of the greater metro west New Jersey area (GMWNJ), which is comprised of 5 counties: Essex, Morris, Somerset, Sussex and Union. The analysis includes data from a subset of 254 national samples that were conducted between the years 2015 and 2019. The subset sample comprises 9,195 respondents from the area of whom 719 identify as Jewish by religion. In addition to religious identification, all the surveys in the custom analysis include the following baseline demographic information for respondents: gender, race, educational attainment, age, and ZIP Code information.

Modeling

The full model specification includes random effects for demographics and geography. Demographic variables include age (18-24; 25-34; 35-44; 45-54; 55-64; 65-74, 75+), race/ethnicity (Non-Hispanic White; Hispanic; Non-Hispanic Other), sex (Male/Female), and educational attainment (Non-College / College). These variables mirror the categories used in the national data synthesis model. The lowest level of geography available for analysis was the ZIP Code of the respondent. Sample sizes were too small at the ZIP Code level for reliable estimation, and therefore were combined into groups of zip codes. The following seven regions were defined for analysis:

07003, 07009, 07016, 07023, 07027, 07040, 07042, 07043, 07066, 07076, 07079, 07090, 07092

Jewish Population Estimates

Results from the model provide overall population estimates as well as estimates of the distribution of Jews by demographic groupings (age, race, county, etc.) for the combined zip codes in the GMWNJ area.

The overall estimate of the adult population who identify as Jewish by religion in the GMWNJ area is 90,300 corresponding to 5.1% of the adult population in the same area. The distributions within the adult Jewish population varied by age, education, gender and race as well as by geography. Table A6 presents this information.

Estimating the number of JNRs (Jews of no religion)

The next step in estimating the size of the adult Jewish population was to estimate the number of adult Jews of no religion (JNRs). Estimates of the number of JNRs are not directly available from the data synthesis and must be approximated from other sources. We estimated the number of JNRs based on averages of the ratio from Pew's 2013 *A Portrait of Jewish Americans*⁷ using national, regional, and statewide data.

The resulting proportion of JNRs to total Jewish adults was 0.1509. The target estimates for JBR and JNR adults are shown in Table A7.

Weighting

Overview of weighting procedures used

The purpose of developing survey weights for the sample is to adjust the survey data so that they will represent the population from which they were drawn. This is done in two ways: base weights, which are based on sample design, and poststratification weights, which are adjustments to external benchmarks.

For base weights, the data are adjusted to match the sampling frame by calculating the strata-specific probabilities of selection into the sample and rates of response. By selectively adjusting weights upward (for respondents from strata in which households were less likely to be selected or to respond) and downward (for respondents from strata in which households were more likely to be selected or to respond), the resulting weights adjust the data to match the frame from which they were drawn.

Poststratification, the second phase of weighting, adjusts the data to match known population parameters. In this case, the known parameters that were utilized were the Enhanced RDD estimates of the JBR adult population and their age distribution, and the JNR estimate, as described in the previous section. The number of children currently enrolled in Jewish preschools, day schools and part-time schools, as well as the number of synagogue member households, federation donor households, JCC member households, and PJ Library households are provided by local organizations. After applying the base weights, the sample is adjusted again to match these parameters. This step yields the primary sample weights for households and respondents.

The weighted primary sample was used to estimate the size of the adult population for multiple categories of religious identity as well as the distribution of Jewish denominational affiliation.

For the supplemental sample, base weights were calculated for the email portion of the frame based on differential probability of selection and response. After applying base weights, poststratification weights were calculated to adjust the full sample to the JBR, age, and gender estimates from data synthesis, the number of children in Jewish education, as well as the JNR estimate and denominational affiliation calculated from the primary sample.

At the end of the process, a datafile was created with one record per household. In this file, each record has four weights:

- 1) wtprimhh: the weight of the household for the primary sample
- 2) wtfullhh: the weight of the household for the full sample
- 3) wtprimresp: the respondent's individual weight for the primary sample
- 4) wtfullresp: the respondent's individual weight for the full sample

Design and base weights

Base weights were calculated separately for the primary sample and the full sample. Base weights are calculated as the product of the design weight (inverse of the probability of selection into the sample) and the nonresponse weight (inverse of the probability of responding after being selected into the sample).

For the primary sample, data were weighted separately within each sub-stratum by the probability of selection into the sample (design weights) and nonresponse. To calculate the design weight, the preliminary frame size was adjusted to account for the presumed ineligibility of a proportion of the households in the sample frame. Ineligible households identified during the data collection period of the survey are those households that are found to be duplicates, deceased, or infirm.

The adjusted frame size for each stratum was calculated as:

Adjusted frame size = Frame size \times (Number eligible households \div Number selected households)

The design weight for each stratum was calculated as:

Design weight = Adjusted frame size \div Number eligible households

Respondents were those who partially or fully completed the survey. Partial surveys were those in which the screening data were completed (whether the respondent was screened in or out). The nonresponse weight for each stratum was calculated as:

Nonresponse weight = Number eligible households \div Number respondent households

Base weight = Design weight \times Nonresponse weight

Poststratification

In order to adjust the sample to account for the known population, the process of poststratification was used.⁸

In order to adjust to the number of JBR adults, the survey data were reviewed based on responses to religion questions for each adult in the household. Each adult received a preliminary designation of Jewish by religion (JBR), Jewish not by religion (JNR), Jews of multiple religions (JMR), Jewish background (JB), Jewish affinity (JA), or not Jewish. All households with no JBR, JNR, or JMR adults were classified as non-Jewish and reclassified as screened out of the sample.

The first stage of the poststratification was conducted on an individual rather than a household level.⁹ The file was converted to an individual-level file with one record created for each adult in the household. The weights of the individual records initially were set at the weights of the household record, resulting in a total weight that added up to the number of individuals rather than the number of households.

The individual records were poststratified to match the JBR and JNR counts. Individuals in the data file who were either JNR or JMR were adjusted to the JNR estimates. Characteristics of JNRs, and all of non-Jewish adults, were derived from the base weights.

The result of this step were interim individual poststratification weights for each individual adult. Because further poststratification weights were conducted at the household level, the interim individual weights were converted to preliminary household weights by taking the mean of all of the individual poststratified weights for all adults in the household for the respondent record.¹⁰ All records for non-respondents were dropped.

Poststratifying to known parameters

The second stage of postestimation applied to households rather than individuals. At this stage, we further poststratified the sample using known parameters of the Jewish community: day school enrollment, part-time school enrollment, pre-school enrollment, synagogue membership, and donating to a local Jewish federation. To make use of these numbers, the education enrollment numbers needed to be converted to a number of households that they each represented.

Local schools provided estimates of 1,500 children enrolled in Jewish day schools, 4,331 in Jewish part-time schools, and 1,400 children in Jewish early childhood centers. To use this estimate for individual adult weights, we estimated the number of households that this represented and the number of adults in those households.

For each household, we categorized it as a day school household if any children were enrolled in day school and a part-time household if any children were enrolled in part-time school. We coded synagogue households if they were members of an Orthodox, Conservative, Reform, other denomination “brick-and-mortar” synagogue, or Chabad.

For households that had any children in school we estimated:

Mean (weighted) day school (DS) students per DS household

Mean (weighted) part-time school (PT) students per PT household

Mean (weighted) early childhood school (EC) students per EC household

To estimate households, we used the following formula:

DS household count = (DS students total ÷ mean DS students per household)

PT household count = (PT students total ÷ mean PT students per household)

EC household count = (EC students total ÷ mean EC students per household)

For synagogue households, membership estimates provided by the synagogues in the region indicated that there were 1,625 households belonging to Orthodox synagogues, 5,960 households belonging to Conservative synagogues, 5,930 to Reform synagogues, 1,420 to other synagogues, and 1,300 to Chabad.

The Jewish Federation of Greater MetroWest New Jersey indicated they received donations from 5,969 households. The local JCCs estimated their Jewish household membership at approximately 2,700 households. PJ Library delivers books to about 2,500 households in Greater MetroWest New Jersey.

The last stage of the poststratification of the primary sample was to adjust the number of households to match the early childhood households, day school households, part-time school households, denominational synagogue households, and federation donor. The results of this step yielded the primary household weight.

Respondent weights

Weights for individual respondents, primary respondent weights, were created for analysis of individual-level characteristics. Respondents were poststratified to represent all adults in the population.

Using the primary household weights, estimates were generated for the total number of adults for the following parameters:

- Jewish type (JBR, JNR, JMR) or non-Jewish
- Age, gender, and college education
- Jewish denomination (Orthodox, Conservative, Reform, Other, None)
- Adults in day school household
- Adults in part-time school household
- Adults in early childhood school household
- Adults in synagogue (Orthodox, Conservative, Reform, No specific denomination, Chabad) household
- Adults in federation-donor household
- Adults in JCC-member household
- Adults in PJ Library household
- Adults in households that included an Israeli citizen, Russian speaker, LGBTQ individual, or person of color
- Geography

The starting weight for the respondent poststratification was the interim individual weight for the respondent. This was poststratified using the parameters listed above to yield the primary respondent weight.

Weights for the full sample

For the full sample, base weights were calculated differently than for the primary sample but the poststratification processes were similar. The full sample was a combination of the primary and supplementary (email-only) samples. All list-based households in the frame were eligible to be selected into the primary sample, but only households with email addresses could be selected into the supplement. Furthermore, households in the supplement received a lower level of effort than did those in the primary, resulting in different probabilities of response.

The full frame was divided conceptually into an email and a non-email frame (the list-based frame). All households from the list-based frame with email addresses were assigned into the email frame. For households without email addresses, the base weight was calculated identically to the way it was for the primary sample.

For households with email addresses, households were considered to have been selected into the full sample if they were in the primary or the supplement.

Base weights for primary and supplement

The design weight for each email stratum was calculated as:

Design weight =

Email frame size ÷ (Primary email sample + Supplement email sample)

The probability of response depended on the level of effort so was different for primary and supplement subsets.

Nonresponse weight, email primary =

Primary email sample ÷ Primary email respondents

Nonresponse weight, email supplement =

Supplement email sample ÷ Supplement email respondents

Base weight =

Design weight × Nonresponse weight

Poststratification of full sample

Poststratification of the full sample was conducted in the same way as for the primary sample, as described above. However, all poststratification targets for the full sample were the estimates generated from the primary sample only.

Final Population Estimates

Precise Population Estimates with Confidence Intervals

Population numbers presented in the report were rounded so as to avoid overprecision – that is, the misleading implication that our estimates are correct down to the single digit.

The precise population estimates with 95% confidence intervals are shown in Table A8. For example, the best estimate of the total Jewish population is 122,272 people. Given the size of the sample and possible sampling and non-response error, we can be 95% confident that the true value lies somewhere between 110,968 people and 133,577 people.

Index of Jewish Engagement using Latent Class Analysis

Latent Class Analysis (LCA)¹¹ is a method for uncovering the latent dimensions that explain the associations between categorical variables.¹² It is a statistical method that is designed to identify latent variables. Latent variables are hypothesized variables of interest that cannot be measured directly in a dataset but are measured indirectly through variables that can be included (observed or manifest variables). As an illustration, “Jewish engagement” cannot be measured directly on a survey, but it is the latent variable of interest for the present study.¹³

Unlike factor analysis, a more frequently utilized method of cluster analysis, the goal of LCA is to identify classifications of people rather than groups of variables or characteristics. The latent variable for LCA is a categorical variable representing multiple classes or types of people. Each individual is assumed to be a member of only one class. The LCA method assigns, for each case in the dataset, a probability that the case is a member of each class. This assignment is based on the pattern of responses to the observed variables used in the analysis. The present study uses a modern version of LCA, a Stata plugin, to estimate the latent classes.¹⁴

Latent class analysis works with the patterns and attempts to group them in such a way that within each group, called a class, there is no association between the items. The latent class is called latent because, although it is actually not in the variable set, it accounts for the associations between the manifest variables in the same way that a third variable can account for the observed association between two variables. In the classic example of a nonsensical statement, “The more firemen at a fire, the greater the damage,” the association is accounted for by a third variable—the size of the fire. The greater the fire, the more firemen; the greater the fire, the more damage. In technical terms, this is called “local independence,” which is also an assumption of factor analysis. The goal of completely accounting for the associations is rarely met, in part because there are so many empty cells, as well as the messiness of real data. Rather, the method tries to find through iterative fitting the right number of classes and relationship between them that minimizes the discrepancy between a perfect fit and the actual data.

To develop an index of Jewish engagement for the present report, 18 items were used to represent the range of Jewish behaviors (Table A9). These items were selected to include ritual, communal, and cultural behaviors, as well as public and private behaviors. In all cases when items had more than two possible response levels, responses were dichotomized with the cutoff based on the distribution of responses in the original variable. After conducting the latent class analysis, a five-class solution was identified.

Latent Class Analysis was conducted in Stata version 15 using a user-developed LCA Stata Plugin developed by the Methodology Center at Penn State. Solutions were examined for up to nine classes, as shown in Figure A1. The five class solution was selected as the point where the goodness-of-fit measures “level off,” that is, improvement by adding more classes begin to decline. In addition, the five-class solution made intuitive sense. As in factor analysis, the number of classes, like the number of factors, is partly a matter of theory and intuition and the labels for the classes and factors are given by the analyst and are not in the data themselves. In addition to various indexes of fit, the output of the Stata program among other matters shows the size of the classes, the probability that a particular indicator would be endorsed by a member of a particular class, and the limits of confidence for the various parameters. The output is voluminous and not presented in this report. As is the case with factor analysis, the names of the classes were developed by researchers to characterize the distinguishing behaviors of each class.

NOTE: This table should not be confused with Table 1 in the Jewish Engagement report, which shows weighted proportions of class membership and of each behavior within the dataset, rather than conditional probabilities as estimated by the LCA algorithm.

Analysis

All analyses were completed using statistical software Stata, version 16. Unless otherwise noted, all analyses were restricted to Jewish households (in which at least one adult was Jewish) as well as individual Jewish adults and Jewish children who were specifically identified by respondents as being Jewish. Analyses of characteristics of the entire population were based only on the primary sample with appropriate weights applied. All analyses of subgroups or subsets of the population were conducted using the full sample with appropriate weights applied.

Exclusion of outliers

When presenting data based on small cell sizes, outlier cases can have an outsized effect that distort the interpretation of findings. We suppressed outliers in a number of cases under the following conditions:

Outlier cases are suppressed from analysis when excluding a single response changed the point estimate by 15% of the original estimate and a minimum of a five percentage point change. For example, if excluding a case changes an estimate from 20% to 15%, the case is suppressed (five is 25% of 20 and a five-point change). If excluding the case changes the estimate from 50% to 45%, it is not suppressed (a five-point change, but only 10% of 50).

Table A9 displays the tokens of the outlier cases, the tables in the report, and the rows and columns (if applicable) from which they were suppressed.

Table A9. Outlier cases

Token	Report	Table	Row	Column (if applicable)

Margin of Error

Many studies report a margin of error instead of reporting confidence intervals. The margin of error is the 95% confidence interval that would be expected if ALL survey respondents had answered a question; if there were only two response choices; if about half gave each response; and if the survey design had used a simple random sample. Given these conditions, the margin of error is dependent solely on the sample size and population size. Furthermore, the margin of error is only applicable to percentages, not to totals or means.

In our sample, with 1,777 respondents in the primary sample, the margin of error would have been $\pm 2.3\%$ if we had used a simple random sample.

Bias and Limitations

Every effort to create a representative sample was made in order to prevent bias or, where bias was unavoidable, to identify and reduce it. Nevertheless, some groups are particularly likely to be underrepresented in the sample. Most significant among these are unaffiliated Jews (including new residents and intermarried families) and young adult Jews. Young adult Jews are also likely undercounted for other reasons. Young adults in general are notoriously difficult to reach for telephone surveys, in part due to the increasing rate of cell phone-only households and in part because they tend to move more frequently than older adults; both conditions render young adults harder to track.

Newcomers who are not known to the community are very likely undercounted, though they may have appeared on the ethnic names list. Interfaith families may also be underrepresented to the extent that they are unaffiliated and reside in households with directory listings that do not fit the selected ethnic name parameters.

Qualitative Coding

The survey included open-ended questions about personal experiences with antisemitism, aspects of Jewish life in which respondents or members of their households were unable to participate due to health issues or financial difficulties, the strengths and gaps within the Jewish community, and ideas for which facilities and programs respondents would like to see offered by the Jewish community. Responses were coded by CMJS/SSRI staff and student research assistants, with at least two researchers coding each question.

Coders were trained to ensure intercoder reliability, stability, and accuracy. Their work was reviewed on an ongoing basis for quality control. Difficult cases were marked for review by supervisors.

Coding was conducted both deductively and inductively. For each question, coders were given a set of categories to look for in the responses; these categories were based on those used for similar questions from previous studies. However, coders were also instructed to watch for emerging patterns. When a coder believed that a new pattern of responses existed within the data, they reviewed their findings with a supervisor who decided whether the new pattern warranted a new code. When a new code was created, the coders reviewed previously coded entries to check whether the new code would apply to them.

More about this survey

The survey is completely voluntary. It will take about 25-30 minutes to complete. You must be at least 18 years old to participate. Only one person from each household can complete the survey, but it can be any adult in the household.

Who is conducting the study?

The Maurice and Marilyn Cohen Center for Modern Jewish Studies (CMJS) at Brandeis University is a multi-disciplinary research institute dedicated to the study of American Jewry and religious and cultural identity.

Why did I receive a survey invitation? How did you get my contact information?

You were randomly selected from a list developed by CMJS of households in your area. CMJS obtained your information from a local Jewish organization, publicly available data, or a list purchased from a commercial data broker.

How will you protect my confidentiality?

All information is kept in password-protected files that are available only to the team of researchers. It will not be released to any agency in your local Jewish community or any other outside organization. At the end of the project, all identifying data will be destroyed.

Why should I complete the survey?

Your participation in this community study will assist your local Jewish organizations develop an estimate of the size of the Jewish community, describe its shape and character, evaluate programming, assess needs, and inform planning and resource allocation.

I'm not Jewish. Should I still complete the survey?

Absolutely. If anyone in your household is currently Jewish or was raised Jewish we would like to learn more about you. If not, answering a few brief questions will help us to estimate the number of Jewish and non-Jewish households that appear on our lists.

I'm not involved with the Jewish community at all. Should I still complete the survey?

Absolutely. The Jewish community would like to understand all Jewish people in the community, no matter their level of involvement. Your feedback will help the community to develop programs that better meet your needs.

What if I don't want to participate?

Tell the caller you would like to be removed from the study. If you receive an email invitation, opt out of future reminders. Or contact 781-736-2936 or metrowestnj@brandeis.edu. Please include your access code from the front page of this letter in your message.

STUDY INSTRUMENT AND CODEBOOK

This document shows the exact text of each survey question, the logic indicating who received each question, the response options, and the weighted and unweighted responses. Before each question is the variable name that corresponds to the public use dataset.

The screener section shows all responses unweighted. Screened-out cases are not included in the dataset and do not have survey weights.

Most weighted responses use the respondent weight. Where the “|^|” symbol appears after a variable name, the weighted responses are estimated using household weights. See public use dataset documentation for details about survey weights.
